FROM ANCIENT ROME TO BREXIT, HOW THE CITIZEN FINDS HIS WAY, EXERCISES HIS RIGHTS AND FULFILS HIS DUTIES

Across the globe citizens are flexing their muscles, but they are also battling oppression and discrimination. What can history tell us about the state's duty to its citizens? As always, a good deal.

This bold and timely new book brings political theorists and historians together to examine the role of, and need for, a critical, global and active civil society.

ABOUT THE EDITOR

Andrew Brown is a senior lecturer in history at Massey. His main areas of research are religion, ceremony and urban society in late medieval Europe. He is the author of Civic Ceremony and Religion in Medieval Bruges c.1300–1520 (Cambridge University Press, 2011); Court and Civic Society in the Low Countries c.1420–1520, co-authored with Graeme Small (Manchester University Press, 2007); and Church and Society in England 1000–1500 (Palgrave Macmillan, 2003). John Griffiths is a senior lecturer in history at Massey University. He is the author of Imperial Culture in Antipodean Cities and several articles in internationally recognised journals, which examine urban and imperial citizenship in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.
