

Agency of Hope

The story of the Auckland City Mission 1920–2020

PETER LINEHAM

$49.99

CATEGORY: History

ISBN: 978-0-9951318-8-0

ESBN: N/A

THEMA: NHTB JKSN1 1MBN 3MP

BISAC: HIS053000, REL045000,

SOC033000, SOC045000

BIC: JKSN1, HBJM

PUBLISHER: Massey University Press

IMPRINT: Massey University Press

PUBLISHED: October 2020

PAGE EXTENT: 304

FORMAT: Limpbound with flaps

SIZE: 250mm x 190mm

RIGHTS: World

AUTHOR'S RESIDENCE: Auckland

A CENTURY OF AUCKLANDERS HELPING AUCKLANDERS

This lively history by well-known historian Peter Lineham features over 100 photographs and takes readers inside a remarkable organisation working at the front lines of a society in which poverty has become entrenched.

For 100 years the Auckland City Mission has been the lynchpin of the city's compassion towards and support for the poor, the marginalised and the homeless. Perhaps the best known of the city's charitable organisations, many thousands of Aucklanders have been involved with the work of the Mission. Its story, marked at times by struggle, is colourful and peopled by memorable characters.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Professor Peter Lineham has for many years written and lectured extensively on the religious history of New Zealand. His recent work has focused on broader trends in contemporary religion. His most recent book is Sunday Best: How the church shaped New Zealand and New Zealand shaped the church (2017). He is currently engaged in various projects on new religious movements in New Zealand, and on Brethren, Protestant, Evangelical and Anglican history.

SALES POINTS

- Written by New Zealand's leading historian of religion, who is frequently sought for comment by the media
- The story of one of Auckland's best-known charity organisations
- A lively history peopled by some remarkable characters and featuring over 100 illustrations
- This is a fascinating look at the nuts-and-bolts of charity work in New Zealand, and how it has changed over the years to meet society's changing needs

PRINTABLE A3 POSTER AVAILABLE UPON REQUEST