SPRING 2025

MASSEY UNIVERSITY PRESS

Welcome! Haere mai!

Welcome to Massey University Press, a publisher of intelligent, relevant books for intelligent, inquiring readers. Just like our university, we want our books to shape the nation and drive the new New Zealand.

We've been in business since 2016, and in that time we've produced books of which we are hugely proud and we've won a clutch of awards. We are privileged to work with so many brilliant authors, designers, photographers and illustrators.

Welcome to our Spring 2025 catalogue, and please enjoy taking a look around.

ARCHITECTURE AND DESIGN

Olveston: Portrait of a home

Jane Ussher and John Walsh

Olveston is one of New Zealand's most remarkable and beautiful heritage homes. Built in 1907 by wealthy merchant David Theomin, its opulence reflects the economic power that was concentrated in Dunedin at the start of the twentieth century. Olveston, evocatively photographed by Jane Ussher, documents its exquisite rooms full of treasures.

Case Studies: A story of plant travel

Felicity Jones and Mark Smith

In 1829, London physician Nathaniel Ward sealed a plant inside a glass container and changed the way plants were transported across the world. This book traces that story through photographs and essays, pairing striking contemporary images with reflections on the implications of plant movement.

*‘The pleasures of Observations are many: rusted rooves and dilapidated exteriors contrast with almost Baroque interiors; communal spaces are sites of care, joy and public rigour; intimate and revealing portraits mix it up with landscapes of a little-visited and hilly, misted terrain.’*

Everything But the Medicine: A doctor's tale

Lucy O'Hagan

Wise, candid, brave and moving, this superbly written memoir by a New Zealand GP is reminiscent of the warm wisdom and humanity of the American physician and writer Atul Gawande, and strives to answer one key question: What is it to be a good doctor in this place?

Mr Ward's Map: Victorian Wellington street by street

Elizabeth Cox

In 1891, a remarkable map of Wellington was made by surveyor Thomas Ward. It recorded the footprint of every building, from Thorndon in the north and across the teeming, inner-city slums of Te Aro to Berhampore in the south. Luxuriously packaged with a cloth case and fold-out jacket, Mr Ward's Map uses this giant map and historic images to tell marvellous stories about a vital capital city, its neighbourhoods and its people at the turn of the twentieth century.

Pātaka Kai: Growing kai sovereignty

Jessica Hutchings and Jo Smith

We face a biodiversity crisis and a climate meltdown. Our food systems are broken, our soils are depleted and our seeds are owned by global corporations. This book salutes Indigenous food heroes from across Aotearoa and neighbouring islands in Te Moana-nui-a-Kiwa who take a holistic approach that considers the interconnectedness of people, land and food. Their inspiring stories show how change begins locally and on a small scale.

Otherhood: Essays on being childless, childfree and child-adjacent

Edited by Alie Benge, Lil O'Brien and Kathryn van Beek

Otherhood's essays are by writers who've felt on the outside looking in, who've lived unexpected lives and who've given the finger to social expectations. Some chose to be childfree, some didn't get to choose and some — through bereavement or blended family dynamics — ask themselves: Am I a mother or am I other?
